Grand Hotel, Eastbourne.

THE GRAND HOTEL
EASTBOURNE

Proprietors: "GRAND HOTEL, EASTBOURNE, LIMITED".

TARIFF

SAMUEL EELEY.
Managing Director.

THE GRAND HOTEL occupies the finest position in Eastbourne, which, of all seaside towns in England, stands pre-eminent, both in point of beauty and salubrity.

Eastbourne is served by the London, Brighton and South Coast Railway, trains with Pullman cars covering the distance from London in 85 minutes; also by the London and North Western Railway, with fast through corridor trains (with luncheon cars) from the North and Midlands. Season tickets now being issued for three, six or twelve months at very moderate rates, Eastbourne is fast becoming a favourite resort of City men, who find it quite convenient to recuperate at the seaside and still attend to their daily avocations.

It is well known that Eastbourne is favoured with an exceptionally large share of sunshine during the winter months, and that the town generally is well adapted for winter Visitors. The Meteorological Society's sun records are taken from the turret of the Grand Hotel. The mean annual temperature as compared with other South Coast resorts is as follows :—

Eastbourne	50·7	Hastings	49·2
Ventnor	50·2	Bournemouth	49·2
Brighton	49·0

Some of the best Schools and Colleges in the Kingdom are to be found at Eastbourne, which also possesses a magnificent Town Hall and several Churches of great beauty. The town is equally noted for its splendid Golf Links (one adjoining the seat of the Duke of Devonshire, the other at Willingdon) and the variety and excellence of its musical and public Entertainments.

Another special feature of Eastbourne is the facility afforded for sea-bathing. There are also the Devonshire Swimming Baths for Ladies and Gentlemen, which are filled and emptied by gravitation, thus ensuring a fresh supply of water at every tide.

The GRAND HOTEL stands in an unique and sheltered position in its own grounds covering more than three acres, with Ornamental Garden and Lawn Tennis Court; it faces the sea and has accommodation for over 400 Visitors. The Hotel contains one of the finest Lounges in England, a handsome Drawing-Room, a Grand Salle à Manger, commodious Smoking and Billiard Rooms, a Winter Garden (adjoining the Lounge), a magnificent Ballroom, and private Banqueting Salons.

The Hotel also contains numerous charming self-contained Suites of Rooms, each comprising Entrance Lobby, Sitting Room, one or more Bedrooms, Private Bathrooms, &c. These Suites are very convenient for families, combining as they do the many advantages of hotel life with the privacy of home.

An Orchestra of the very highest class performs daily in the Lounge (Wednesdays excepted).

The Hotel is fitted throughout with Electric Light, and three Passenger Lifts travel to all floors. The public rooms and corridors are warmed in winter, and in the summer are pleasantly cool. The sanitary arrangements embody the most modern and up-to-date improvements.

All Postal, Telegraph and Telephone conveniences, also a Chemist, Hairdresser, and a complete installation of Baths, including Turkish, Electrical, Medical and Massage for Ladies and Gentlemen, are provided in the Hotel. A Motor Garage adjoins, and is in charge of an experienced attendant, from whom Motor-car requisites are obtainable.

The Cuisine is under the control of an experienced Chef, and the Wines are carefully selected and listed at moderate charges.

The Hotel Motor Omnibus meets the principal London trains.

PRINCE'S ROOMS

(Entrance Jevington Gardens)

THE PRINCE'S WING contains on the Ground Floor a Suite of Rooms called the "Prince's Rooms." These consist of a beautifully decorated Dining Hall and a Reception Room, together with Private Rooms and all necessary conveniences. This floor has an entrance of its own, both from Jevington Gardens and from the Gardens of the Hotel, and is thus quite private and separate from the Hotel. It is arranged for Wedding Receptions, At Homes, Banquets, Balls, &c., or may be engaged exclusively for private occupation.

In the DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE high-class Dramatic and Operatic performances are held by the best London and Provincial Companies, and Special Concerts and Recitals by world-renowned artistes are arranged at frequent intervals.

There is also an excellent Racquet Court, a Bicycle Track, and Skating Rink in the Park.

THE GOLF LINKS

(Royal Eastbourne Golf Club)

are about 10 minutes' walk from the Hotel. Visitors desiring to play can do so on payment of a small fee.

The EASTBOURNE FOXHOUNDS

Frequent Hunts are arranged by the amalgamated Eastbourne and East Sussex Packs.
